Gaiás, City of Culture

The City of Culture presents itself as a driving force to promote innovative projects in the field of culture, entrepreneurship and technology and a point of connection between Galicia and the rest of the world. Built on the summit of Gaiás, one of the mountains that surround Santiago de Compostela, this city that seems to emerge from the earth stands as an architectural icon of contemporary Galicia, along with the millenary Compostela, World Heritage Site and destination of the Pilgrim's Way to Santiago de Compostela.

This space, dedicated to culture, entrepreneurship and technology, plays host to:

Gaiás Centre Museum. Its beauty and flexibility make it the perfect venue for large-scale exhibitions, cultural events and performing arts shows. It is the cultural and artistic centre of the City of Culture

Library and Archives of Galicia. They preserve the bibliographic and documentary memory of the community and act as the head of the public network of libraries and archives.

Centre for Creative Entrepreneurship. This is home to the Galician Agency for Cultural Industries (AGADIC), which promotes business in the cultural sector alongside being a coworking space, a business incubator and an ICT business area.

Cultural Innovation Centre (CINC). This is the headquarters of the Fundación Cidade da Cultura and of the Agency for the Technological Modernisation of Galicia, which brings together the technological services of the Galician Administration.

The Fontán Building. It turns the City of Culture of Galicia into a reference point in research and inter-university collaboration and heritage studies, hosting the European Centre for Research in Cultural Landscapes, the Institute of Heritage Sciences (dependent on the CSIC) and services that support the three Galician universities.

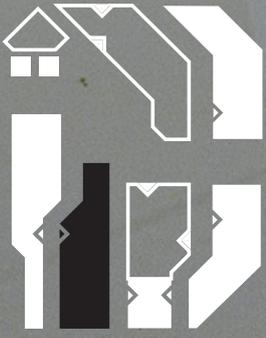

Natural areas. The Galician Forest, the Literary Garden, the Theatre

Garden and the Lake Park are the green spaces of the Gaiás. Places where you can enjoy nature, rest, do sport and pursue a healthy lifestyle through its network of paths, all whilst admiring the new faces of the city of Compostela.
